

DenverBoundSurveyForm : Entry # 119*Route ID

3

Direction of travel

Both

In my opinion this route is safe for cyclists

3

This route has places where I felt unsafe

Yes

List unsafe locations

32nd Ave from Ford St to Kendrick St

The level of traffic on this route is:

Light

The surface condition of this route is

Acceptable

I would ride this route again

Strongly Agree

DenverBoundSurveyForm : Entry # 122*Route ID

3

Direction of travel

Golden - Denver

In my opinion this route is safe for cyclists

1

This route has places where I felt unsafe

Yes

List unsafe locations

32nd Avenue, the entire length

26th Ave at Sheridan and also along much of its length.

While perhaps acceptable to experienced riders - if there was no other route available - I would otherwise not ride this route again since there are other routes available.

The level of traffic on this route is:

Heavy

The surface condition of this route is

Acceptable

I would ride this route again

Disagree

DenverBoundSurveyForm : Entry # 129*Route ID

3

Direction of travel

Both

In my opinion this route is safe for cyclists

2

This route has places where I felt unsafe

Yes

List unsafe locations

The intersection at Federal can be challenging.

Platte Street by REI is dangerous for a number of reasons: a lot of traffic with no bike lane, a narrowing of the roadway at the curve by the REI parking lot, riding surface is very poor (pot holes that could eat a 23c tire.

Another reason this street should be made safer for cyclists is that so many cyclists have to use it to get to 35th or 23rd.

The level of traffic on this route is:

Heavy

The surface condition of this route is

Fair

I would ride this route again

Disagree